Topic: English Grammar
INSTRUCTOR: Professor Klaver

PREREQUISITES: Engl 102 or Engl 120H or equivalent

COURSE DESCRIPTION
This course examines a modern version of traditional grammar. Topics include the grammar of sentences, sentence patterns, verbs and nouns, modifiers, and coordination. Required of English majors in the TEP track, but open to all English majors and non-English majors interested in the subject.

REQUIRED TEXTS

COURSE REQUIREMENTS
Three tests, one final exam

ENGL 301
Introduction to Literary Analysis
INSTRUCTOR: Dr. Bogumil
TR 2:00 3:15 p.m.

PREREQUISITES: Engl 102 or Engl 120H or equivalent

COURSE DESCRIPTION
Required of all English majors, English 301 is intended to be one of the first English courses a student takes. The emphasis is on writing based upon intensive rather than extensive reading, although selections are drawn from several major genres (poetry, drama, fiction). Students are introduced to basic terms and concepts of literary study and to different ways of approaching literary texts.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS
8 critical analyses (10 points each); midterm and final examination (5 quotation explications per examination, 100 points for each per examination)

REQUIRED TEXTS
Chopin, Kate. The Awakening. Dover. ISBN: 0-486-27786-0
Selection of poems by T.S. Eliot, Langston Hughes and Yusef Komunyakaa (Handouts)

ENGL 301.002
Introduction to Literary Analysis
INSTRUCTOR Dr. McEathron

PREREQUISITES: Engl 102 or Engl 120H or equivalent

COURSE DESCRIPTION
This course is dedicated to introducing the basic methods and practices of literary study, with the main goal of improving your skills as readers and writers. (It is also hoped that with greater knowledge and consciousness will come greater enjoyment.) We will pursue this goal through the study of a relatively small number of texts: the idea is to move beyond content issues (“what happens in this book?”) and toward analytical ones. We’ll focus on the following:

* strategies for critical reading, writing, and argumentation
* literary forms, critical terminology, and, to some extent, critical schools
* methods of literary research and documentation of sources

COURSE REQUIREMENTS
10 quizzes, 5 papers (4-5pp).
Your final grade will be figured as follows:

10 quizzes. . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . 10%
5 Papers (4-5 pp.). . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . 90%

ENGL 302A
Early British Literary History
INSTRUCTOR Dr. A. Chandler

PREREQUISITES: Engl 102 or Engl 120H or equivalent

COURSE DESCRIPTION
A survey going from the 700s to the late 1700s, English 302A examines three periods of early British literary history: the Middle Ages (Medieval Period), the Sixteenth and Early Seventeenth Centuries (the Renaissance or Early Modern Period), and the Restoration Period and Eighteenth Century (from 1660-1800 – sort of a double period). Through lecture and discussion, the course introduces key writers, works, and trends from these three eras. Highlights include Chaucer, Shakespeare, and Milton, plus the newer sorts of satire, fiction, and reflective poetry we'll see in the last phase of the course. You'll be surprised at the knowledge-connections and food for creative thought this course provides you.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS
Three critical essays; midterm and final exams; ten brief response papers.

REQUIRED TEXTS
Vol. A = The Middle Ages
Vol. B = The Sixteenth Century / The Early Seventeenth Century
Vol. C = The Restoration and the Eighteenth Century
Students are expected to purchase these texts in print form (used copies are fine), and to bring the appropriate volume to class for reference during discussion.

ENGL 302B
Later British Literary History
INSTRUCTOR Dr. McEathron

PREREQUISITES: Engl 102 or Engl 120H or equivalent

COURSE DESCRIPTION
This course surveys the major works and developmental lines of British literature from the Romantic period (c. 1800) into the Twentieth Century, with a third of the course focused on each of the Romantic Era, the Victorian Period, and the post-1900 period. The course will work 1) to establish the basic elements of a literary history (chronology, developments in form and genre); 2) to introduce, and distinguish between, the methods and preoccupations of major writers; and 3) to improve skills in literary-critical writing, including argumentation, use of evidence, and development of thesis statements.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS

ENGL 303
Literary History of the United States Before 1900
INSTRUCTOR David Anthony

PREREQUISITES: Engl 102 or Engl 120H or equivalent

COURSE DESCRIPTION
“What is an American?” This is the question posed by a Frenchman named Hector St. Jean de Crevecoeur in 1782, not long after America came into existence as a nation. In an attempt to answer this question, we’ll spend the semester reading a range of literary texts produced in America from the age of exploration to the present day. And what we’ll find is that all of them have something to say about the uneven and often vexed notion of American national identity. Early tales of Indian captivity; sentimental stories about the perils of passion and desire in the post-revolutionary era; gothic stories about murder and the supernatural; dramatic romances about adultery, slave revolt, bull-fighting, travels to Mexico; stories about the boredom of white-collar work in 21st Century America—these and other tales will give us a chance to see American culture telling itself a story about itself. We’ll have to decide as a class what these stories mean, but count on texts in which passion and desire, as well as quests and adventure, play a large role. You can also expect narratives in which abstract notions such as citizenship, democracy, and state authority are both critiqued and affirmed for reading audiences. The one thing you shouldn’t expect are tales with clear answers. American literature is notoriously ambiguous and open-ended. If this literature could speak in one voice, it would probably sound like the narrator of Walt Whitman’s “Song of Myself”—whom many critics have interpreted as the voice of American democracy. “Do I contradict myself?” the narrator asks. “Very well then, I contradict myself. I am large, I contain multitudes.”

Engl 305-3
Literary History of Britain and the United States, 1900 to Present.
INSTRUCTOR Prof. Molino

PREREQUISITES ENGL 102 or 120 or equivalent

COURSE DESCRIPTION A survey of British and American literature from 1900 to the present.

ENGL 307
Film as Literary Art: The Cinema of Howard Hawks.
INSTRUCTOR Prof. Tony Williams

COURSE DESCRIPTION
Though no Academy Award winner, Howard Hawks is one of the key figures of the Classical Hollywood Silent and Sound era who worked in every genre and collaborated with writers such as William Faulkner and befriended other literary talents such as Ernest Hemingway. This class will examine the development of his work from the early silent era to the late 50s in terms of his involvement with different genres and stars, many of whom gave their best performances in his films.

Films screened include THE DAWN PATROL (1930), SCARFACE (1932), BRINGING UP BABY (1938), ONLY ANGELS HAVE WINGS (1939), AIR FORCE (1943) TO HAVE AND HAVE NOT (1944), THE BIG SLEEP (1946), RED RIVER (1948), THE THING FROM ANOTHER WORLD (1951), MONKEY BUSINESS (1952), and RIO BRAVO (1959)

COURSE REQUIREMENTS
Assignments: Four written papers, (each 6 pages minimum)

REQUIRED TEXTS

English 352
Forms of Poetry
INSTRUCTOR Allison Joseph

PREREQUISITES: ENGL 382A or consent of instructor.
COURSE DESCRIPTION
This course is designed for students with previous poetry-writing experience and aims to give students a working familiarity with poetic techniques and forms. Topics covered include the use of accentual-syllabic meter, and the writing of sonnets, French forms (villanelles, sestinas, and rondeaus), pantoums, ghazals, syllabic verse, blues poems, prose poems and free verse. Students will be required to present copies of their poems to their classmates for discussion, to comment on those poems, both verbally and in writing, to memorize a poem and recite it in front of class, and to write a paper on that poem. In addition to that paper, there will be two quizzes and one major exam, plus a final portfolio of poems due at semester's end, including revisions of poems previously submitted for class discussion.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS
--A portfolio of poems in the following forms: English Sonnet, Italian Sonnet, Villanelle, Sestina, Rondeau, Pantoum, Ghazal, Cinquain, Ode or Elegy, Blues Poem, Poem for Children (50 percent of final grade). Portfolio due on the last class date
--In-class public recital of a memorized poem, along with a brief analysis (3-4 typed pages of that poem) (30 percent of final grade)
--Two Quizzes: Poetry Terminology (20 percent of final grade)

REQUIRED TEXTS

ENGL 365 001
Introduction to Shakespeare
INSTRUCTOR Professor Ryan Netzley

PREREQUISITES ENGL 102 or 120 or equivalent

COURSE DESCRIPTION
How do Shakespeare's plays represent the relationship between violence, particularly state violence, and morality? How is the theater similar to surveillance, a mechanism for probing the interiority of characters like Hamlet? In what ways is such surveillance necessary to make persons free and autonomous? How do these plays and poems represent desire and exchange, in both sexual and economic realms? This course serves as an introduction to Shakespeare's plays and poems, via three separate but related conceptual issues: 1) violence, justice, and morality; 2) surveillance and selfhood; 3) the relationship between desire and its exchangeable objects. The goal of this topical organization is to provide you with a host of different ways to engage and respond to this gargantuan entity, "Shakespeare." In this course, we'll examine the historical circumstances in which Shakespeare's plays appeared. Most importantly, however, we will examine the literary and formal aspects of these plays and poems, how they work as aesthetic objects. In addition to providing an introductory survey of Shakespeare's work, the primary goal of this course is to make you a sophisticated reader of and a critically engaged respondent to Shakespeare. That means that we'll be examining how these plays mean and how they function, not just what they mean. Thus, we will focus considerable attention on how to write intelligently, seriously, and thoughtfully about Shakespeare.

Readings
- Moral Violence
- Titus Andronicus
- Henry V
- Theater’s Surveillance

REQUIRED TEXTS

ENGL 365 002
Introduction to Shakespeare
INSTRUCTOR P. McGrath

PREREQUISITES ENGL 102 or 120 or equivalent

COURSE DESCRIPTION
English 365 will engage in detailed study of 6 of Shakespeare’s plays. We’ll pay particular attention to their style and cultural contexts. Emphasis in spring 2017 will be on the late plays of Shakespeare.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS
Two Exams
Three papers (5 pages each)
Class Participation

REQUIRED TEXTS
COURSE DESCRIPTION
This semester will be devoted exclusively to literary (i.e., non-genre — no fantasy, sci-fi, horror, romance, etc.) short stories.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS
Each member of the class will read and respond to ten published stories, complete six exercises, and write one literary short story, which will be revised, and then workshopped, and then revised again.

REQUIRED TEXTS
No text is required: the assigned stories are all available on line, or will be provided.

COURSE DESCRIPTION
The essential characteristics of the fiction writer? A sharp eye for detail, a strong grasp of language, and a dogged persistence. Often, though, aspiring fiction writers underestimate the amount of close reading they’ll need to do to develop their craft. It’s not enough to read as a reader—you must read as a writer. In other words, instead of allowing yourself to be swept up in the “vivid and continuous dream” of the story, you will need to duck behind the curtain to explore how the “dream” is made. To this end, you’ll read and discuss in detail many short stories in this class—drawn from the works of Ron Carlson, Junot Diaz, Amy Hempel, Ray Carver, Andre Dubus, Denis Johnson, and Kelly Link—flash fiction as well as longer works. You will also develop a working vocabulary to discuss published stories and respond thoughtfully and generously to your peers' work. You will keep a writer’s journal in which you’ll analyze stories from a writers point of view, complete exercises, keep notes on the elements of craft, transcribe dialogue you’ve overheard, and construct drafts of scenes (you will be asked to type and turn in some of these exercises as noted). Finally, you will draft and revise three "original" 5-7 page short stories that will demonstrate—along with your ACTIVE participation in class—your fundamental understanding of tension, character, image, point of view, and dialogue.
Here are some questions we'll explore in the class in our own work and in the published stories we'll read: which carefully chosen details impart to the reader a sense of the whole? What makes a character real? When should you use dialogue in place of narration? What are the limits of first person? What moves or amuses a reader and what makes her throw the story on the floor and stomp it? How does fiction work its particular magic? And most importantly, what makes a reader turn the page?

COURSE REQUIREMENTS
Students are required to write and revise 16-21 pages of fiction and to comment effectively on their peers' work. Discussion will be central to the class and attendance mandatory.

REQUIRED TEXTS
Tobias Wolfe’s The Vintage Book of Contemporary American Short Stories ISBN-10: 0679745130

ENGL 381B
Intermediate Fiction Workshop
Instructor: Prof. Pinckney Benedict

COURSE DESCRIPTION
A workshop designed to equip intermediate fiction students with the critical tools necessary for the creation and revision of original prose fiction. Students will create new work and critique one another's work as well as taking part in in-and-out-of-class writing exercises, readings, and criticism (from a writer's point of view) of the work of published contemporary writers.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS
Students will submit for workshop appraisal a minimum of three original (created specifically for this class) writing packets (short story sections, novel chapters, vignettes, prose experiments) of approximately 1500 words each. At least one of these packets will, in the course of the semester, be substantially revised and resubmitted for workshop appraisal, for a total of four major submissions. Students will engage actively in the critique of fellow students' work and in the conversational business of the class. They will also provide a succinct paragraph of criticism of each submitted piece to both the writer of the piece and the instructor.

General class participation plays a large part in the calculation of the final grade. Participation includes but is not limited to a lively interest in and constructive contribution to critical discussion of other students' work and successful completion of all writing exercises and other curricular activities.

English 382B.1
Creative Writing: Intermediate Poetry
INSTRUCTOR Professor Jordan
PREREQUISITES Engl 382A
This class is designed for students with some poetry writing experience who wish to technique. The class will focus equally on studying the technique of several contemporary poets and adapting those techniques to your writing, writing and workshop of original poems, and learning and using poetic craft.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS
Students will be expected to read many contemporary poems, write poems for workshop and participate fully in class discussions including putting written comments on their fellow poet’s poems submitted to workshop and to submit a final revised portfolio of approximately 5 poems. There will be a lot of emphasis on the basic craft of writing a beautiful sentence as well as attention to the careful choice of words.

REQUIRED TEXTS

David Winter Safe House (chapbook)
At least one more book TBA

ENG 393
Undergraduate Seminar: The Dystopian Novel
INSTRUCTOR Dr. Robert E. Fox

COURSE DESCRIPTION
Dystopia is at the opposite end of the imaginative spectrum from Utopia. The Oxford English Dictionary defines dystopia as “an imaginary place or condition in which everything is as bad as possible.” In this class we will investigate how various authors go about envisioning these spaces or circumstances in extremis.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS
Conscientious attendance and participation; two essays (60% of grade); midterm and final examinations (20%).

REQUIRED TEXTS
Aldous Huxley, Brave New World (1932)
John Brunner, The Shockwave Rider (1975)
William Gibson, Neuromancer (1984)
Jonathan Lethem, Gun, with Occasional Music (1994)
