

Communication across cultures

This course is an introduction to communication between and among people from different cultures (within the U.S. and globally), and it focuses on the application of intercultural communication theory and research. Lectures, discussion, assignments and exercises examine everyday encounters (actual and mediated/virtual) between individuals and groups from different races, ethnicities, nations, religions, genders, ages, sexual orientations, physical abilities and other forms of difference.

This is also a University Core Curriculum course,

CMST 301i
SPRING 2026

M/W/F - 10-10:50 am
M/W/F - 12-12:50 pm

bardhan@siu.edu

