

ANTH 104-950

The Human Experience

Dr. Ulrich H. Reichard

Expanding worlds by exploring everything human

An exploration of the human condition in all its cornucopia.

We will visit societies all over the world, in space and time, through the lens of ethnography and archaeology. We will also blink at human origins (paleoanthropology), and in doing so consider what we can learn from the primates (primatology), our closest relatives, as well as examine the origin of language and how we communicate (linguistics). The Human Experience offers a holistic understanding of what it means to be human.

This course satisfies the University Core Curriculum-Humanities requirement. Credit Hours: 3

Long life spans are not only a feature of contemporary life.

MirageC/Getty Images